Graduates of the YSCF Nonprofit Leadership Institute

DID YOU KNOW?

The YSCF has founded a Nonprofit Leadership Institute that was offered for the first time from May 20–24. Fifteen college-aged students from Yellow Springs and Greene County were awarded fellowships and completed the 30-hour program.

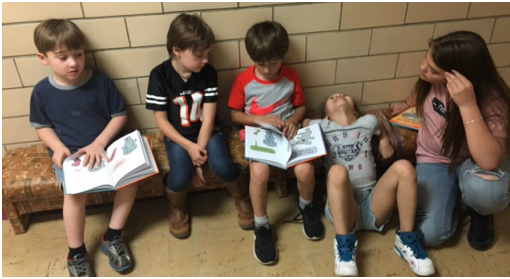

Mornings were spent learning about nonprofits, collaboration, volunteer management, marketing, development and grant writing, boards and trustees, strategic planning, financials, and grants review. The instruction included panel discussions with representatives from local nonprofits.

Afternoons were spent working at local nonprofits. Following the Institute, participants were offered summer work with several local nonprofits.

Plans for future programs include versions for Antioch College Student Miller Fellows, the community, YSHS seniors, and a repeat for local college students.

Books for Kids

Kindergarteners enjoy their new books

David Turner knows that books have value and reading is important, especially for young people. That's why he wanted to get a book into the hands of kindergartners in the Yellow Springs Schools.

The idea was paired with the Yellow Springs 365 Project to sponsor a grant award from the Yellow Springs Library Association, and 50 books were purchased to give to 2 classes of kindergartners. All of the books were from Mo Willems' Elephant and Piggie series.

The books were meant to be fun, but also to emphasize reading as an important element of learning and that it's good for kids to be exposed to books, to read, and to talk about reading. Turner hopes it will also encourage the kids to want to get books from the library. The looks on their faces when they discovered they were getting a book by their favorite author suggests they might do just that.
